2020-21: The Year of COVID-19

In March 2020, East Central Community College and the world were turned upside down by a pandemic known as COVID-19. The contagious respiratory disease would not only cause death and illness worldwide, it would change life and college as we knew it.

After a pandemic-shortened 2020 Spring Semester, which would ultimately finish through online studies after spring break, the 2020-21 college year began with a myriad of changes and was interesting to say the least.

As always, the faculty, staff, and students at East Central faced the challenge head on and with great success. When students returned for the Fall 2020 semester everyone was required to wear a mask and the college instituted a hybrid system where classes were split with 50 percent of students attending class in-person while the other tuned in virtually and then for the next class meeting that week they swapped places. This allowed East Central students to safely have face-to-face, yet socially distanced contact with instructors at least once a week, and it's something that appeared to have helped greatly with the academic success of our students. Some days were a struggle, but students and teachers alike all powered through and were happy to be back in the classroom even in a changed format.

Scott Hill, health, physical education and recreation instructor, said of the changes due to COVID, "I am proud that we have been able to be back in the classroom for the 2020-21 school year even though it was done a little differently. I will certainly be ready to return to the traditional way we have done things. I am a firm believer in the importance of connection between teachers and students. It has been a little more difficult to connect with students not having them all in class every day. Having to wear a mask has also made it harder to connect. I think it has been a bigger adjustment for the teachers because so many of our students are so technologically advanced. I have been so impressed with how the students have been so patient with the current classroom format."

Courses in the healthcare and career-technical areas had an especially trying time as they had to navigate a new way of teaching hands-on skills. Surgical Technology Program Director and Instructor Lee Ann Shirley said her way of teaching was turned upside down this past year.

"As a surgical tech instructor, the majority of my program is hands-on learning. I had to get creative and show skills using Zoom and Canvas Studio versus in our lab, which was very hard for me as an instructor as well as hard for students. When one hospital would not allow us to come to their facility last year during COVID, we had to be creative and find other clinical sites for students to get their hours. Virtual instruction made things difficult, but thank goodness we made it through it and things are looking brighter."

For Cosmetology Instructor Aubrie Howell, it was a double whammy. During the early stages of the pandemic, her 2020 graduates were entering an industry that had totally shut down for a while. Her newly enrolled students faced challenges much like the healthcare students. "I never imagined when I started teaching that I would have to teach cosmetology online," Howell said. "I quickly had to come up with new ways of teaching people how to do a hands-on skill without being able to guide their hands in person. Students who completed their training during the shutdown had to enter an industry in a way that no one had ever experienced before."

Phi Theta Kappa held a live streamed induction ceremony in the spring.

The college missed having the opportunity to invite alumni and friends to campus for Homecoming and other activities; however, the college was able to host two home football games with limited attendance as part of a shortened 2020 season. Outdoor and indoor movie nights and other socially distanced activities were also held to give students the best possible Fall Semester in light of the pandemic.

Student Body Association President Courtney Gill said it was extremely difficult to plan student events and activities due to the pandemic, but that she and the other student government officers wanted to provide as much normalcy as possible.

"I had an amazing time at East Central my freshman year. It was so much fun, and all the events and activities at East Central last year made me want to get involved because I wanted to be a part of something so amazing. I have enjoyed every second here at East Central, but it was definitely more difficult to plan and to get others involved because of COVID and the rules and regulations that came with it. We were able to do much more in the spring than we did in the fall," she said.

> I believe COVID made students and student-athletes realize how blessed we are to actually be in a class and to have the opportunity to make new friends. The pandemic made me sit back and realize all the blessings God put in front of us whether it was being in class or the sports we play that we unknowingly take for granted.

Head Football Coach Ken Karcher said about the changes to athletics in the Fall Semester, "I think the greatest challenge we faced in building a team was to create an environment that fostered relationships. The daily health requirements required good communication and organization from all the staff."

The college realized a bit more normalcy as the Spring 2021 semester saw not only a drop in the number of cases of COVID-19, but also vaccines that were welcomed by great numbers of Mississippians and Americans, especially among the aged population.

Hybrid courses continued and all of the winter/spring sports, including a delayed basketball season and a spring soccer season, were able to play, albeit there was rescheduling from time to time because of a minimal number of COVID infections, either with one of our own athletes or those at the other institutions we were playing.

After losing out on most of the previous 2020 season, student-athletes like baseball player Amani Larry were thankful for the opportunity to play in Spring 2021, even with the many changes that came along.

Larry said, "COVID affected a lot of students whether it was academics or sports. I believe COVID made students and student-athletes realize how blessed we are to actually be in a class and to have the opportunity to make new friends. As a student-athlete, COVID made us realize that anything can be taken from us at any time. The pandemic made me sit back and realize all the blessings God put in front of us whether it was being in class or the sports we play that we unknowingly take for granted."

Softball Coach Leigh White added, "I think in the beginning we dealt with a lot of change through testing athletes, virtual classes, wearing masks, and other changes. But in the end, you get used to everything and you adapt to a new routine."

Women's Basketball Coach LaTaryl Williams said this was one of the toughest seasons of his career, but witnessing the toll that COVID took on his team gave him a new perspective on his role as a coach.

"Throughout this pandemic, I have come to realize that my position as the head coach has allowed me to become a vessel to guide my players, not only as student-athletes, but more importantly as human beings. Seeing my players and their family members struggle with their health was one of the hardest things I've encountered as a coach. The season was more about hugs and prayers than X's and O's."

Technology became an even bigger part of the equation as attendance was still limited for both indoor and outdoor events for much of the year and live stream video became the norm.

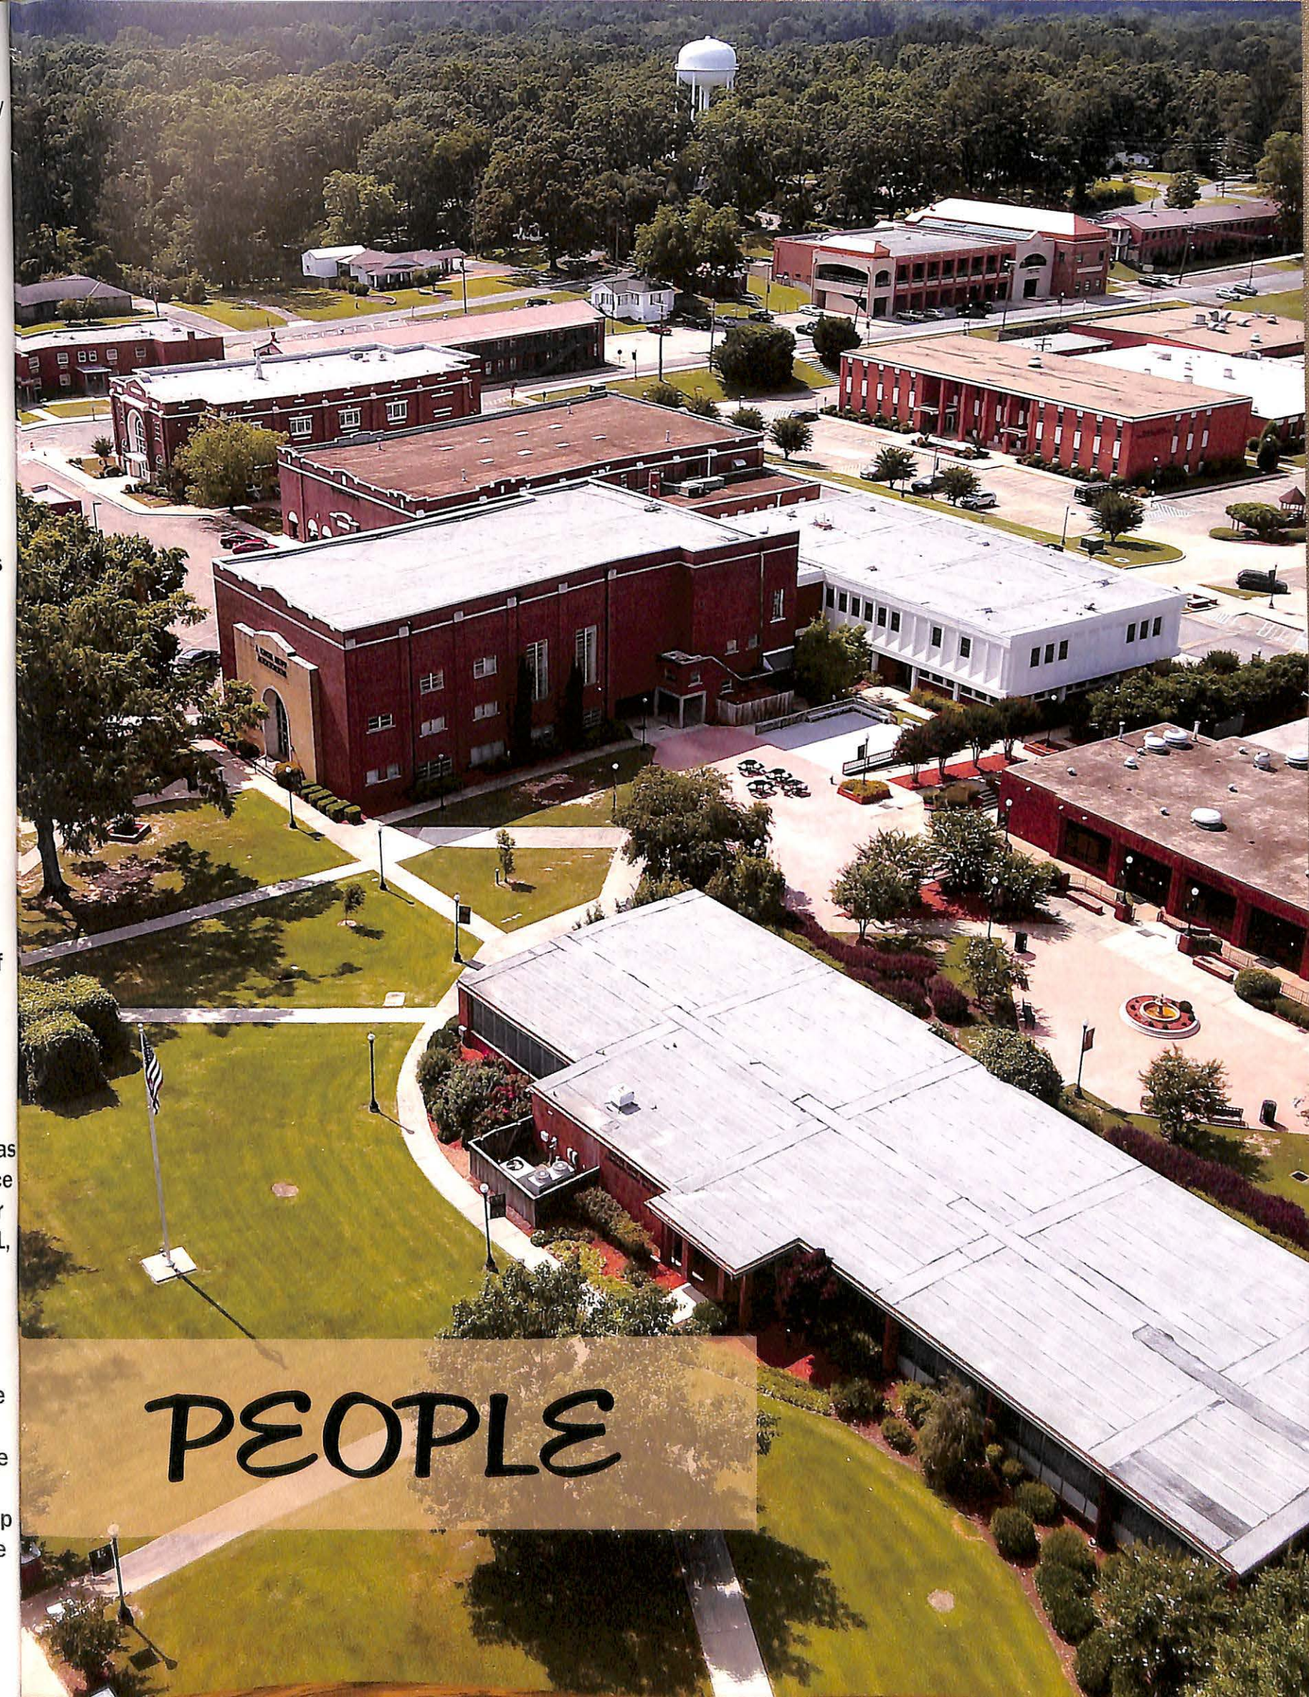
The Fine Arts Department performed spring concerts with very limited attendance, but because of the availability of live streaming, many parents and friends could see the hard work of ECCC students through their home computers and cell phones.

Student government officers hosted several Spring Spree events with social distanced and outdoor activities. Phi Theta Kappa held a live streamed induction ceremony. Phi Beta Lambda, DECA, and other student organizations held virtual competitions on the state and national levels.

ECCC also hosted a live streamed Awards Ceremony with only students present, which featured six new inductees into the Hall of Fame, as well as numerous other award winners.

The semester concluded with two live streamed graduations in Huff Auditorium on the Decatur campus, a morning ceremony which included Career & Technical Education and Healthcare Education students and an afternoon Associate of Arts and Associate of Science ceremony. Although in-person attendance was limited to students only, college administrators were happy to once again be able to host Commencement Ceremonies for those completing degree requirements in Spring 2021, as well as Summer and Fall 2020. More than 550 graduates were awarded degrees and/or certificates during East Central Community College's 92nd Commencement Ceremonies.

With the number of COVID cases down and the state of Mississippi lifting mask mandates, East Central is looking toward a more routine start to the next college year. But as we reflect on this past year and the trials that came with it, we hope our Warrior family will keep in mind the importance of each other and the time we are fortunate to spend face to face, whether in the classroom, on the athletic fields, or in fun activities.



PEOPLE

ECCC welcomes Dr. Gregory home

East Central Community College is a place deeply rooted in the life of Dr. Brent Gregory ('96), who was named the college's ninth president in July 2020. For Dr. Gregory, his new role is more than just the next step, it's what he calls the pinnacle of his career. It's coming home to a place which he and his family have loved for a long time.

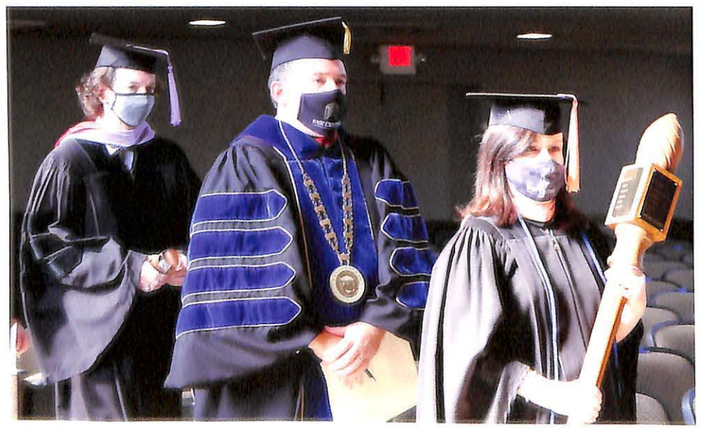
"East Central Community College has played an enormous role in my life and that of my family," Gregory said. "It's hard to put into words the elation I felt knowing that I would have the opportunity to make a difference at an institution that I care so deeply about."

A native of Nanih Waiya, Dr. Gregory's family ties to East Central date back to 1970 when his parents, Larry and Glenda Jones Gregory, met in Sullivan Center, the former student grill and a popular spot for students to gather. He enrolled as a student in 1994 and the following year shared a room with his brother, Bart, in Winston Hall. East Central is also where Gregory met the young lady who would become his wife, the former Christi Lee ('95) of Philadelphia, who he met while both were employed at the college, and where they began their life together.

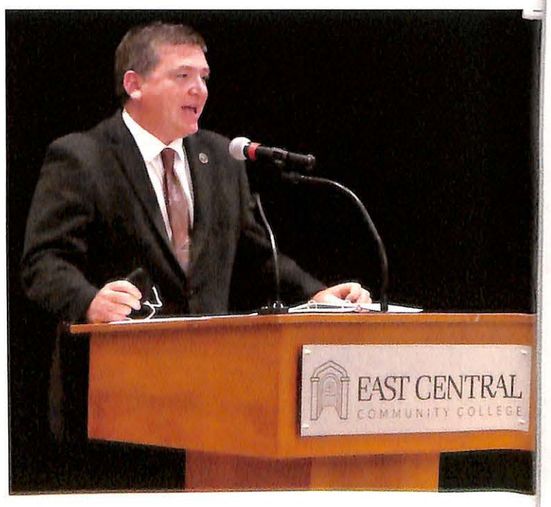
After receiving his associate degree from ECCC, Gregory earned his bachelor's degree in physical education and master's degree in workforce training and development from the University of Southern Mississippi and his doctorate in community college leadership from Mississippi State University.

He began his career in the community college system in 2000 as East Central's director of student life. He later served as associate vice president for enrollment management at Mississippi Delta Community College in Moorhead and his most recent tenure was as vice president for student services at Southwest Mississippi Community College in Summit.

Dr. Gregory said, "I have always said that my goals were that when the opportunity came that I would have amassed the experience and knowledge to fulfill the role of college president. The opportunity to lead this institution was always the absolute pinnacle in terms of goals. I knew 10 years ago that in order to prepare myself for this opportunity that I would have to do the most difficult thing and that was to leave. It was always with the thought of making myself better so that if this opportunity became available, I would be prepared to give ECCC the leadership it deserves. The experience that I garnered while working at community colleges in different areas of the state has given me a perspective that while we must strive to maintain the traditions that make us special, we should also strive to get better every day as a college."



Board of Trustees Chairman Dr. Jimmy Hollingsworth, Dr. Brent Gregory, and nursing instructor Lisa Gorgas



Dr. Gregory with members of the 2020 Homecoming Court

Dr. Gregory said the best thing about coming home has been the ability to rekindle the relationships that were built throughout his life, and conversing and working with others to determine how best to continue building and growing the college.

"The individuals who are a part of this organization are not only great at their jobs, but truly seem to have the best interests of this organization at the forefront of their thoughts," he noted. "The reception I have received has been incredible. The familiarity with individuals has led to open and candid discussions on how to make ECCC even better than it is currently. At the end of the day that's what we should all be striving for, to make ECCC the best it can be for everyone. I would hope that individuals see me as someone who loves this institution and wakes up every day striving to make it better for all stakeholders."

It is also important to Dr. Gregory for students who attend East Central Community College to not only accomplish their academic and career goals, but to leave with the same fondness that he did as a student and to always think of East Central as a place to call home.

"A central tenet of what I am trying to accomplish every day is to give students the opportunity to feel the way I do for this college. You can't artificially make students care for an institution, it has to be real. I know that while a student and later an employee there were people who helped me change everyday memories into moments. They did that by providing opportunities both inside and outside of the classroom to grow as an individual. That's what makes ECCC special to so many are those memories and I hope I am assisting to continue and improve upon that environment."

Forever, #WarriorStrong

Perseverance is the continued effort to achieve something despite difficulties and opposition. The 2020-21 academic year at East Central Community College was unprecedented to say the least, yet you persevered. Despite the obstacles you faced due to COVID-19, you continued to achieve your educational goals. You remained #WarriorStrong, making this one of the most memorable years in the history of East Central Community College.

I hope you enjoy this year's Wo-He-Lo yearbook. Let it forever serve as a reminder of all that you overcame while attending college during a worldwide pandemic. I hope you will refer to it often and remember your alma mater as you continue forward with your journey, whether that be in the workforce or on to a four-year university. And most of all, always remain #WarriorStrong.

Thank you. Thank you for your perseverance and thank you for making my first year back at my alma mater one I won't soon forget.

Humanities Instructor of the Year

Emerson	Edwards
"Do not search outside yourself."	"God Glorified in Man's Dependence"
"Trust thyself; every heart vibrates to that iron string."	"A truly humble man is sensible of . . . of the insufficiency of his own power and wisdom."

East Central Community College English instructor Paige Case was named the college's 2020 Humanities Teacher of the Year and presented "Awakenings: Surprising Intersections between Jonathan Edwards and Ralph Waldo Emerson," a special program Feb. 24, 2021.

During her presentation, Case presented a comparison/contrast of Jonathan Edwards and Ralph Waldo Emerson, key figures in early American literature. Case said, "As theologians, the two could not have been more different. In fact, one Emerson scholar writes, 'There can be no doubt that Jonathan Edwards would have abhorred from the bottom of his soul every proposition Ralph Waldo Emerson blandly put forth in the manifesto of 1836, Nature.' This language is strong, but true, making the commonalities between the two quite unexpected. This presentation explored their 'surprising intersections' as well as how these connections led to their stark differences."

Case is a native of Brookhaven and graduated cum laude from Millsaps College in 1984 with a Bachelor of Arts degree in English. In 1999, she earned a Master of Arts in Teaching degree with an emphasis on literature from the University of West Alabama.

During her career, Case has taught English and literature at the junior high, high school, community college, and university level. Her literary emphasis has been American literature, specifically early American literature. She has held her position at East Central Community College since 2015. Her primary focus at ECCC is composition, and she currently serves as lead instructor for Developmental English.

She and her husband, David, have three children, Elizabeth (Drew), Catherine (Brian), and Mary Madelon, and one granddaughter, Camille.

Baseball

The East Central baseball team had a fantastic season in 2021 as the team finished 30-17 overall and were in the national polls for several weeks under the direction of 15th-year Head Coach Neal Holliman.

The team saw big series sweeps over Pearl River and Gulf Coast during the regular season and went on to sweep Northwest in the NJCAA Region XXIII Best-of-Three series.

The win sent the team to the NJCAA Region XXIII Tournament in Poplarville where the Warriors made a run at the title. The Warriors won three straight games over Meridian, Hinds, and LSU Eunice to advance the finals, but finished as runners-up, tying the program's best-ever finish.

Amani Larry and Walker Johnson were named First Team All-MACCC for their impressive play throughout the season, while Clayton Cook earned Second Team honors. Eli Harrison, Gage Tufnell, Roper Ball, and Hayden West all picked up honorable-mention honors as well.

ECCC's Johnson and Cook also both earned weekly honors, receiving MACCC Pitcher of the Week and MACCC Player of the Week, respectively.

Another notable fact from the season was coach Holliman's 400th career win at ECCC.

Softball

East Central softball was one of the few sports that had a normal season in 2021. The team opened the year ranked No. 15 in the nation, but things ultimately did not go in the Lady Warriors' favor as the team finished 13-27 overall, just missing out on the playoffs.

The Lady Warriors were led by Leigh White who was in her second year at the helm after last season was cut short. She was assisted by Mahalia Gibson.

Some of the Lady Warriors' premiere wins included a sweep over Meridian and a 12-2 run-rule victory over Southwest on sophomore day to close out the year.

Zharia Richardson led the Lady Warriors at the plate with a .389 batting average and 37 RBIs. Richardson and Katelynn Gipson were tied with a team-high nine home runs each. Braelyn Boykin and Gracey Baucom handled the bulk of ECCC's pitching. They finished the season with 66 and 59 strikeouts, respectively.

Richardson's performance landed her First Team All-MACCC honors, while Gipson was named honorable mention.

ECCC hosted a playoff match on campus and advanced to the MACCC/Region XXIII semifinals in Perkinston where they fell to the No. 7 Jones College Lady Bobcats, 1-0.

The team climbed into the national rankings for the first time ever and reached 13th nationally. Additionally, the Lady Warriors' only three losses on the season came from top-10 nationally-ranked opponents.

Sasha Clare, ECCC's leading scorer with eight goals, closed out the season with NJCAA All-Region Honors after picking up MACCC Player of the Week recognition once during the year.

ECCC's Olivia Clark was named MACCC Goalie of the Week on three occasions and earned NJCAA Goalie of the Week once for her stellar season in goal.
